Chapter 1: The Reward of Faith and Charity

The Gardener's Devotion:

The man, having learnt the secret of the garden's prosperity, reflected upon the gardener's dedication to charity and self-sufficiency.

The gardener's practice of dividing the produce into three parts demonstrated a profound understanding of balanced stewardship.

The Divine Blessing on Charity:

This account illustrates the principle that charity, coupled with mindful consumption and reinvestment, invites divine blessings. The gardener's commitment exemplified how faith translates into practical generosity.

The Gardener's Explanation:

Gardener:

"I estimate the produce of this garden. From it, I give one-third as charity, consume one-third myself and with my family, and plant the remaining third back into the garden."
